LIT231: Literature and Environmental Issues in Diverse Society
Tuesday (E108) & Thursday (E136) 1:45 – 3:00pm

Course Description: This course will trace the evolution of literary responses to our natural environment. Students will engage with a range of literary forms including (but not limited to) pastoral verse, Transcendentalist prose, Romantic lyric, post-industrial parody, postcolonial poetics, and climate fiction (or “cli-fi”). Students will likewise study corresponding critical methodologies, including Postcolonial criticism and Ecocriticism, in addition to a range of global environmental histories—both North and South.

Prerequisite: Successful completion of WRT101.

Student Learning Objectives:
As a result of meeting the requirements of this course, students will be able to:
1. Identify major movements in environmental writing, including (but not limited to) pastoral, Romantic, and postcolonial.
2. Analyze responses to our natural environment—both fiction and nonfiction—as they shift over time in response to economic and political phenomena.
3. Engage in formal ecocritical responses to literary texts.
4. Demonstrate an understanding of the historical, aesthetic, and literary aspects of environmental literature through both oral and written assignments.
5. Produce a properly formatted written evaluation of selected texts; and demonstrate competency in both research methodologies and literary analysis.

Means of Assessments:
1. Students will perform critical analyses of works corresponding to each literary genre and movement in environmental writing. Two formal analyses will be assigned in which students will demonstrate competency through formal syntheses of multiple texts. Informal written assignments will likewise gauge student competency. (SLO #1, SLO# 3, SLO #5)
2. The midterm examination will be composed of a series of essays. Essays will focus on both aesthetic categories—the formal components of works—as well as the economic and political registers of the texts under analysis. (SLO #2, SLO #3)
3. The final project for the course will be a traditional term paper in which students will produce a formal Eco-critique of selected works. (SLO #3, SLO #5)
4. Each student will lead a class discussion of assigned texts for which s/he will produce a series of relevant questions. (SLO #4)
Required Texts:

Additional readings will be made available on Moodle

Course Content:
Following Laurence Buell’s indictment of environmental writing and “nature poetry” as reducing our global ecosystem to “mere setting,” we will consider a diverse set of literatures that seek instead to understand the environment as a working and dynamic ecology. We will thus consider the pastoral as a point of departure as we consider how nature has been framed by writers from the Ancient to the Romantic to the Postcolonial era while we attempt to come to grips with our increasing alienation from our natural environment.

While it is useful for students to have some working knowledge of poetics and landscape, this is not necessary.

Grading policy:
Critical Essays: 40%
Midterm Examination: 25%
Final Paper: 25%
Class participation: 5%
Informal written assignments & Quizzes: 5%

Written assignments must be formatted according to MLA standards. You will find citation guides on our library’s website (www.bergen.edu/library). BCC’s Writing Center is located in L125, and you are encouraged to work on your papers with our faculty and professional writing tutors. Please note that the center is indeed a tutoring center—you are not to drop off your paper for proofreading as this is not a function of the center.

Attendance/Lateness Policy:
BCC Attendance Policy: “All students are expected to attend punctually every scheduled meeting of each course in which they are registered. Attendance and lateness policies and sanctions are to be determined by the instructor for each section of each course. These will be established in writing on the individual course outline. Attendance will be kept by the instructor for administrative and counseling purposes.”

You are allowed two unexcused absences. Additional absences will negatively affect your grade. Likewise, two instances of missing significant class time (of ten minutes or more) will result in one absence.
ADA Policy:
Students with documented disabilities who require accommodations by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) can request support services from the Office of Specialized Services of Bergen Community College located in room L 115 of the Pitkin Learning Center.

A note on plagiarism: Please give credit where credit is due! Honesty is expected of you. It is expected that the work you hand in will always be your own, and that you will never copy sentences, phrases, paragraphs, or whole essays from any other person’s work, for that is plagiarism. If you are ever unclear about how to cite another person or author’s ideas, come see me or consult your manual. If you do plagiarize, you will receive an F for the assignment under review. If you plagiarize more than once, you will fail the course and may be reported to the college’s judiciary committee.
