State and Local Government is the study of state, county and municipal political systems. The course examines the making and enforcement of public policy and the political roles of the people, political parties, political machines, and pressure groups. Intergovernmental relations and evolving patterns of metropolitan government are analyzed with an emphasis on New Jersey and Bergen County government.

3 lectures, 3 credits
General Education Course-Social Science Elective

Key objectives of the course include enabling the student orally and in writing to:
1. identify and define basic concepts of political science, e.g., power, politics, government, administration, separation of powers, checks and balances, and federalism;
2. identify and distinguish between the various branches and levels of government and their respective powers;
3. compare and contrast the constitutional aspects of government in different states and communities, e.g., strong mayor and weak mayor systems, long and short-ballot states, variations in appointment and removal powers of executives, etc.;
4. identify and contrast the various methods for citizen participation, e.g., elections and voting, lobbying, and political parties;
5. analyze the decision making process, formal and informal; and
6. identify these factors in their own political systems, especially New Jersey

In pursuit of the foregoing goals, the course is based on the reading and analysis of required texts, contemporary newspapers and other media sources. Students are given the opportunity and are encouraged to participate actively in class discussions; and students are required to do a substantial amount of expository and critical writing in response to the material presented in the course.
The Student Learning Objectives (SLOs) in this course are intended to be aligned with as many of the college's Core Competencies and General Education Goals as possible. In addition, student progress in reaching the course's SLOs is to be assessed through a variety of assessment types (tools) and on the basis of a variety of assessment criteria. Assessment types may include any combination of classroom discussion, objective tests and examinations, essay tests, papers, short essays, book reports, student classroom presentations, etc., utilizing current (technological and traditional) techniques of social science research and writing.

Course Content

The course is intended to introduce students to the basic principles, values, structures and operation of the current state and local governmental and political systems. Sample course syllabi can be viewed on the website of the American Political Science Association (APSA) at http://www.apsanet.org/content_3807. The topics included on the sample course syllabus (below) should be covered.

Special Features of the Course (if any) [to be designated by the instructor]

Along with traditional sources students are expected to use the Internet to access sources for their research on current issues.

Course Texts and/or Other Study Materials

A variety of suitable texts exist from major publishers. Choice of a textbook is a department-wide decision.

Web Site: www.college.hmco.com is a course specific website linked to the text.

Other study materials are available such as The New York Times-Online: www.nytimes.com, The Star Ledger (for state level coverage) www.nj.com/starledger, the Bergen Record (for county coverage) www. bergenrecord.com

Writing and Critical Thinking Requirement(s)

Because POL-104 is a General Education course, it requires students to complete a variety of critical thinking and writing assignments. These assignments may include class discussions and debates requiring the application of critical thinking skills, short in-class essays, out-of-class writing projects (journals, research papers, argument-analysis papers, book reviews, etc.), tests and examinations containing essay components, and so forth. Instructors will respond to and comment on students' writing in detail.

Sample Assignment: PORTFOLIO-ESSAY:

This written essay is designed to focus on one, relevant, current topic based on articles from current newspapers, and other computer accessible sources, such as Web sites. Besides getting students to become expert in one specific area of government and politics, the newspaper research will introduce the student to the wide range of issues, controversies and problems that affect us all. Basically, this assignment requires the student to read the newspaper, select and follow an approved topic as it develops during the first two months of the semester. Collect and save the articles, either by downloading them to your word processor or clipping them from the newspaper, and then organize them with a commentary (essay) explaining the development over the period and offering your own observations and conclusions. Two articles and one paragraph will be handed in each week.
identifying and justifying your topic. Without the early research and topic approval the final essay will not be accepted. Due date: 11th week.

Grading Policy
A student's final grade for the course is based primarily on his or her performance on the required work for the course (writing assignments, examinations, class presentations, etc.) and on his or her overall mastery of the material covered in the course. A student's class participation may also be evaluated, and the grade thereon may be used as a factor in determining the student's final grade for the course.

Sample: Consistent with the Attendance Policy grades will be earned through a series of three tests (70%), a written portfolio-essay described above (20%), and class participation which includes participation, lateness and attendance among other things (10%).

Attendance Policy
BCC Attendance Policy:
All students are expected to attend punctually every scheduled meeting of each course in which they are registered. Attendance and lateness policies and sanctions are to be determined by the instructor for each section of each course. These will be established in writing on the individual course outline. Attendance will be kept by the instructor for administrative and counseling purposes.

Sample Attendance Policy in this Course:
It is expected that students will attend all class meetings. If a student misses more than three weeks worth of classes throughout the semester he/she will not pass the course. For example, if the course meets twice a week, no more than six absences are tolerated, for any reason. The student will not pass the course for reasons of absence alone. For a course that meets once a week, the maximum number of absences tolerated is three. Three latenesses equal one absence; classes when tests are held are included as classes. Illness, accidents and business emergencies sometimes occur; therefore it behooves everyone to anticipate these emergencies by being in class routinely. Look upon absences as your sick days and personal days on a job: use them when necessary; take too many and you lose the job! (If you are late be sure to see the Professor that class lest it be counted as an absence.)

Other College, Divisional, and/or Departmental Policy Statements [optional but recommended]

Examples:
- Statement on plagiarism and/or academic dishonesty.
- ADA statement.
- Sexual Harassment statement.
- Statement on acceptable use of BCC technology.
- Statement on the purpose and value of faculty office hours.

Student and Faculty Support Services [optional but recommended]
List support services, e.g., the Writing Center, the Math Lab, the Tutorial Center, Online Writing Lab (OWL), Office of Specialized Services, etc. Include information on the BCC Library.
