COURSE DESCRIPTION

DAN1xx/WEX1xx - Yoga-Dance is designed to introduce students to an awareness of life energy as presented in the practice of yoga postures and meditation and to relate this awareness to dance as a form of self-expression. In addition to exploring energy, students will study and practice correct body alignment, muscle development and mental discipline relevant to both yoga and dance. This course is primarily concerned with the practice, rather than the theory of yoga and dance and therefore journal writing and the chronicling of personal development forms the analytic portion of the course with texts listed in the suggested reading list as supplemental. Each class will include the following components: Meditation, physical warm-up, demonstration and practice of yoga postures, exploration and practice of movement connected to yoga and dance improvisation. The course will build in complexity with more challenging yoga postures and movement and energy explorations that progress from individual to partner to ensemble dancing.
